What is the Centre for Global Education?

The Centre for Global Education (CGE) was established in 1986 by eight development agencies to provide education services that will enhance awareness of international development issues. Its central remit is to challenge dominant stereotypes and commonly held perceptions of developing countries which are prevalent in our society.

The Centre believes that education can empower individuals and communities to play an active role in addressing the causes of poverty and injustice around the world. This view is reflected in our Mission Statement which outlines our vision for education:

The Centre for Global Education believes in and works toward a just and equitable world. We seek to promote an understanding of the interdependency of people across the world.

We aim to use education as a means of challenging the causes of poverty and inequality in both local and global contexts by working with all sectors of education.

The Centre's aims are:

- To act as a resource for research and education on global issues;
- To influence policy and decision-makers with respect to development education;
- To encourage the use of development education methodologies to bring about change at a local and global level;
- To support the ongoing work of groups / organisations that foster social and economic equality at a local and global level;
- To liaise and network with relevant agencies and groups.

EDUCATING for a JUST and SUSTAINABLE WORLD

Education Services

The Centre's education services include:

Global Youth Work

The Centre offers an Open College Network accredited training course in global youth work with the aim of creating capacity in development education among practitioners in the youth sector in Northern Ireland. We also provide global youth work training workshops to youth organisations. If you would like to take up these training opportunities then please contact:

• Jackie Balmer • E-mail: jackie@cge.uk.com

Citizenship Web Site

The Centre has produced a new web-based resource for young people designed to support learning in Local and Global Citizenship. The web site address is www.bigpic.biz and training is available to teachers and schools on how it can support learning in Citizenship and development education. For further information contact:

• Aine McMullan • E-mail: aine@cge.uk.com

Capacity-Building in Development Education

The Centre is delivering a new capacity-building project in the north and south of Ireland with the aim of enhancing practice in the development education sector. Project activities include producing a development education journal and organizing a conference and training seminars on different aspects of development education practice. For further information contact:

• Catherine Simmons • E-mail: catherine@cge.uk.com
