Policy and Practice: A Development Education Review

Policy and Practice is a peer reviewed, bi-annual, open access journal published by the Centre for Global Education, a non-governmental development organisation based in Belfast. First published in 2005, Policy and Practice aims to provide a space for development education (DE) practitioners to critically reflect on their practice, discuss the main challenges faced by the sector and debate new policy developments. The journal aims to: share new research in DE; celebrate and promote good practice in DE; enhance collaboration between development education and related adjectival education sectors; further mainstream development education within the statutory education sector in Ireland; and provide opportunities for exchange and debate between educators from the global North and South.

Policy and Practice has a designated website (<https://www.developmenteducationreview.com/>) which contains an archive of all 37 issues published to date which are available for viewing online and for downloading. The journal is open access so there are no pay walls for users. Each issue addresses a specific theme which is central to development education policy and practice. The journal invites contributions from academics, education practitioners, non-governmental organisations, statutory bodies and civil society groups. The journal boasts an international pool of contributors from Europe, North America and the global South.

A review of the number of visitors to the website from January to December 2022 clearly demonstrates the importance and value of online, open access publishing. The journal website received 173,567 unique visits and 236,705 visits in total. The top ten visitor countries by pages viewed were: United States (149,769); Philippines (89,655); United Kingdom (73,686); India (73,097); Canada (38,895); Ireland (26,276); South Africa (12,349); Malaysia (12,000); Germany (11,709); and Norway (11,635). These metrics clearly demonstrate the international reach of the journal and strong levels of take-up in the global South.

Since 2005, Policy and Practice articles have generated 4,827 citations - an increase of 1,153 on 2022 - of which 4,416 were in external journals and 411 were found in other Policy and Practice articles. These citations are evidence of the journal's impact on research in the DE sector and contribution to high quality debate. It is also evidence of the journal's interdisciplinary content with citations appearing in a total of 671 journals, 385 books, 428 dissertations and 126 NGO publications. The research on citations in this report was undertaken in November 2023 and an increase in these numbers should be expected going forward. They represent an important means of measuring the journal's pedagogical impact both sectorally and geographically.

The success and longevity of the journal is the result of the commitment of Irish Aid, our funder since 2005, which has extended its support of Policy and Practice to 2025. The journal's quality and international resonance is also the result of a very supportive and committed Editorial

Board and International Editorial Board. Centre for Global Education is grateful to a very loyal and expanding readership across the world which has elevated the journal's international standing. The research below was carried out by Emma Soye and Nora Treichel.

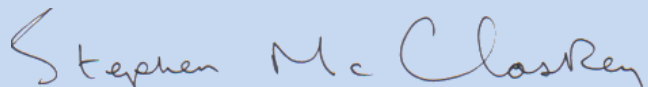

Introduction to the Citations database

Please find tabulated below the citations generated to date by articles published in the Centre for Global Education's bi-annual, peer reviewed, open access journal Policy and Practice: A Development Education Review. The first column carries the author's name, the second has the title of the article and the third the issue in which the article appeared. A short-hand code is used to distinguish different types of articles. For example, 1F1 denotes the first Focus article to appear in issue one. Other forms of article shorthand are P for Perspectives articles and V for Viewpoint articles. The fourth column has the total number of citations generated by the article, the fifth column shows the number of citations that appeared in other Policy and Practice articles and the sixth column shows the total number of citations that appeared in external publications (books, journal articles, dissertations). In most cases, we have listed all of the citations generated by the articles but, where the number exceeds a manageable total for the table, we have inserted a sample of citations. The rest can be found by entering the article title / author in Google Scholar. In addition to the database, there are also four separate appendices attached at the end of the document to create a better overview of the journal's impact. Appendix A lists all scientific journals that have published papers citing articles from Policy and Practice. Appendix B is a list of the books in which citations have appeared, Appendix C lists NGO publications that have cited Policy and Practice articles, and Appendix D lists all academic papers, theses and dissertations that have cited journal articles.

The aim of the report is to measure the impact of the journal in supporting research and enhancing good practice in development education. It also helps us monitor the level of dialogical debate between authors within Policy and Practice. The citations speak to the relevance of journal articles to current debates in development education policy and practice, and its capacity to initiate new topics for discussion among educators.

We apologise in advance for any errors that appear in the database. Please contact us to amend or add to the citations listed and we will gladly update the database. Please contact stephen@centreforglobaleducation.com

The Centre for Global Education (CGE) is a development non-governmental organisation that provides education services to increase awareness of international development issues. Its central remit is to promote education that challenges the underlying causes of poverty and inequality in the developing world and effect action toward social and economic justice.

The Centre equips individuals and organisations to understand the cultural, economic, social and political influences on our lives that result from our growing interdependence with other countries and societies. It also provides learners with the skills, values, knowledge and understanding necessary to facilitate action that will contribute to poverty eradication both locally and globally.
